HINT CLARKE WAS MURDERED

BRUISES INDICATE STRUGGLE; REPORT CLEWS FROM NOTES

Mother Leads Probe; Dis- agrees With Suicide Story

MIAMI, Fla., April 23.—Doctors have found bruises on the body of Haden Clarke, writer-flier, which indicated he died after a struggle, and handwriting experts claim they have found nine discrepancies in "suicide notes" left in Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller's home.

Dr. Carlton Deederer, Mayo Clinic graduate, told of the bruises during a conference called by Mrs. Ida Clarke, mother of the dead sweetheart of Mrs. Keith-Miller. State's Attorney Hawthorne and State's Investigator Rowland participated.

The handwriting experts said their findings included differences in phraseology used by Clarke in his writing and in the "suicide notes," doubtful signatures and differences in spelling.

One of the most important differences, the experts said, was the use of the word "advise." In the suicide note the word was spelled "advise," after the English usage. Examination of many pages of manuscript prepared by Clarke while writing Mrs. Keith-Miller's biography showed he always spelled the word "advise."

Mrs. Keith-Miller insisted late last night that she "loved Clarke with all my heart and soul. I was proud to know I was going to marry him." She was still held, however, by her manager, Captain W. N. Lancaster, a British flier, pending investigation. They have been associated in many long distance flights.

Clarke was found dead by Captain Lancaster on the sleeping porch of the Keith-Miller home Wednesday. The two occupied beds on the porch; Mrs. Keith-Miller slept inside. Lancaster had hurried her after receiving word that young Clarke and the woman flier planned to marry.

Clarke lay on the floor on the porch, Lancaster's gun under one leg. Later, the "suicide notes" were found, and the story of Clarke's romance with the subject of his biography, and the story of a mysterious air line to Mexico was revealed.

Two bruises above Clarke's right ear, Dr. Deederer said, could have been caused by knuckles or the butt of a gun. They might have been caused by a fall after the shooting. The doctor said he found an indicated fracture at the base of the brain could not have been caused by the bullet which pierced the brain.

W. H. Combs, an undertaker, also told of a bruise on Clarke's shoulder he thought was caused by a struggle preceding the shooting. It, however might have been caused by a fall for Clarke did not die instantly.

The handwriting experts also announced they found that Captain Lancaster when asked to write several sentences on a typewriter, did not leave spaces following periods which ended sentences.

Clarke, an expert typist, always used a space after each period. And in the so-called suicide notes, Attorney Hawthorne said, the space was omitted.

Mrs. Clarke, magazine editor, newspaperwoman, and instructor in journalism in Miami University, never has been satisfied that the notes were written or signed by her son, she told the United Press.

In the meantime, the Miami Daily News said yesterday that the airline which Lancaster was investigating when he suddenly hurried home after hearing of Mrs. Keith-Miller's romance, had been rejected as a "smuggling plan."

A syndicate offered to pay Lancaster, Mrs. Keith-Miller, and Clarke, all of whom needed money badly, $100 weekly to operate the airline. The first week's payment was made, the News said.

And Lancaster, it said, went ahead with the first flight to check up on the plan because payment had been accepted. He found the plane was to be used for smuggling. Correspondence to that effect was reported found in the Keith-Miller home.

FUNERAL MONDAY
SPRINGFIELD, April 23.—Funeral services for Gen. J. Warren Keifer will be held at 11 a. m. Monday at the residence under direction of Rev. Charles Ryan Adams, pastor of the Covenant Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in the family plot in Ferncliff Cemetery. Friends have been requested to omit flowers.

CHAPLIN STILL ILL
SINGAPORE, April 23.—Charles Chaplin, confined to a hospital here with an attack of dengue fever, probably will not be able to leave the hospital for another week, it was understood today.

Clean-Up -- Paint-Up

(AN EDITORIAL)

Xenians are warmly applauding the proposed "clean-up and paint-up" campaign here next week.

The suggestion advanced by the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association is meeting with a hearty response.

Several years ago these campaigns, carried on every spring over a period of years, were successful in civic beautification and elimination of health hazards.

The drives were abandoned after the campaign of the spring of 1927 and the revival this year has a number of other virtues to recommend it.

The removal of unsightly rubbish from yards and alleys beautifies the city as a matter of civic pride.

It eliminates rubbish heaps that are the breeding places of flies and other disease-carrying insects, thus accomplishing a commendable purpose from a health standpoint.

It furnishes the opportunity to hide unsightly spots by planting flowers and shrubbery, thus furthering the beautification movement.

It accomplishes the removal of accumulated papers and debris that constitute fire hazards thus effecting an elimination of dangers from this source.

It permits of collection of papers and magazines by Boy Scouts to be sold and the proceeds devoted to the Parent-Teacher Council to be used in its charitable work.

It enables citizens to find a worthy disposition for discarded clothing or household goods, which will be given to the Red Cross for distribution to the poor.

It will provide work for many jobless in cleaning yards and houses, doing painting work or odd jobs. These workers may be obtained through the free employment bureau.

It provides work for painters and stimulates business through paint sales, while the painting itself not only beautifies properties but protects them against the weather.

Surely here is a list of potential accomplishments that should stir the co-operation of every citizen, whether through municipal pride or selfish interests.

Collection will be made Wednesday and Thursday and will be free of charge, since truck owners are donating their time and their vehicles to further a worthy cause.

It is believed that Xenians, always alive to the practical virtues, will find in the "clean-up and paint-up" campaign, an activity worthy of their interest and co-operation.

NINETEEN CAPTURED LINKED WITH SERIES OF MID-WEST CRIMES

Kidnaping And Bank Robberies Blamed On Suspects

CHICAGO, April 23.—Police of three states operating in concert arrested nineteen men and women today in a series of raids and charged them with twenty-nine bank holdups and one of the mid-west's most sensational kidnapings.

Chief Investigator Pat Roche of Cook County state's attorney's office said confessions had been obtained from several of the captives.

The raids, a highly spectacular series, occurred simultaneously at Chicago Heights, Ill., Racine, Wis., Lafayette Ind., and Pendleton, Ind.

Roche characterized the arrests as sounding the death knell of one of the most highly organized criminal bands in the central states.

The kidnaping which police claimed was solved by the roundup was that of Howard A. Woodson, 52, prominent South Bend, Ind., industrialist, who was held for $50,000 ransom during the winter. He was released after at least part of the ransom was believed paid.

Gunplay marked one of the raids in Chicago Heights where the heavily armed investigators seized twelve men and two women. In the hideaways officers found a small arsenal of revolvers, high powered rifles, sawed off shotguns and ammunition.

The raids followed several months of intensive undercover work by members of the Chicago "Secret Six," businessmen's crime fighting organization, state authorities of Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin and Chicago police.

Roche said the arrests came as a sequel to the recent arrest and conviction of an Indiana sheriff as a member of a bank raiding ring which had headquarters at Chicago Heights. Investigators following the trail of clues uncovered at that time discovered extensive operations of the ring, Roche said.

Four of the nineteen held were women but police were not certain they were linked with holdups and abductions charged against the gang.

DAYTON IS FACING FINANCIAL WORRY
DAYTON, O., April 23.—City Manager Fred O. Eichelberger today was hunting a solution to Dayton's financial dilemma. Unless some plan is formulated, city employees will receive no pay on May 1.

Dayton banks have refused to lend the city money until the municipal budget is balanced. A loan of $50,000 asked by the city on tax anticipation warrants was refused.

Vigorous objection has been voiced to the plan of giving city employees tax participation notes, redeemable Nov. 2.

CALL ROCKEFELLER ASSOCIATES AFTER CAPITALIST HEARD

Pool Operations Are Un- raveled Before Committee

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Counsel for the senate banking and currency committee's stock market investigation announced today that witnesses heretofore regarded as missing, former associates of Percy A. Rockefeller in market pool operations, were enroute to Washington and would be here today. The men are Bernard E. Smith and Thomas E. Bragg.

Both men were said to have been in Columbus, O., yesterday when William A. Gray, committee counsel, announced his subpoena service had been unable to find them. Bragg communicated with Chairman Norbeck of the committee, promising to be here today and Smith's counsel arrived this morning and said his client would reach Washington before noon.

Gray also announced a subpoena had been issued for William Danforth, reportedly a large operator. Rockefeller was an uncomfortable witness for two hours before the committee yesterday. He revealed pool or syndicate operations with either or both of his associates in Lima Locomotive, Air Reductions and Alaska-Juneau, the latter a mining stock.

Though born to millions as the nephew of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., the witness told the committee that his losses had been "horrible, terrific."

"My only hope of salvation," said Rockefeller, "is for a recovery."

Rockefeller said his pool operations had been on the long side, but was unable to assure the committee that his operating agents might not have sold short. His confessed knowledge of what Smith or Bragg did with his and their money was limited.

Short operations in the past two years and a half netted Rockefeller a profit of $550,000. But his losses on long stock which he failed to unload before the October, 1929, crash aggregated "a good many millions." Rockefeller is no longer short. He believes it dangerous now to sell short—"I would be afraid to do it." He was short 60,000 or 70,000 shares for a brief period in 1927.

TWO PERISH IN COTTAGE FIRE

Cousins Victims In Hamilton Blaze

HAMILTON, O., April 23.—Two young men, cousins, were burned to death at midnight when fire destroyed a cottage here.

The victims were Russell Winkler, 19, and his cousin, Raymond Winkler, 20. It was feared that Joseph Winkler, 14, a brother of Russell, had also perished but he appeared while firemen were fighting the fire.

Walter Winkler, 50, father of Russell, and his cousin, Raymond, were found intoxicated a few blocks away during the fire, was absolved of any blame by Coroner Edward Cook today. Cook said he had evidence that the father had spent the evening in a pool room.

The two victims had been drinking. The coroner was told. It was believed one of them may have kicked over a kerosene lamp.

Firemen were unable to find the cause of the blaze.

FALL SEES GAME FROM CELL

SANTEE, N. M., April 23.—Albert B. Fall, who once sat in Presidential boxes as a member of the cabinet and watched big league baseball, saw his first game of the 1932 season yesterday from his prison window.

The one-time secretary of the Interior, serving a sentence of a year and a day for accepting a bribe, watched from the barred window of the hospital ward at the state prison here a baseball game between the prison nine and an Albuquerque team.

Fall, who entered the prison in an ambulance, has been kept in the hospital ward since then. He watched the game with apparent interest.

CONVICT MAN OF OFFICER'S DEATH
PORTSMOUTH, O., April 23.—After six hours deliberation, a Scioto County jury found Cassell Patton, 25, of New Boston, O., guilty of murder in connection with the death of John Brown, city detective, last February 26.

ACID SHOWERS FOUR DURING SCHOOL RIOT

Victims Scarred By Acid At School Elections

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 23.—The normal academic calm of the University of Minnesota had vanished today in a series of riotous student elections climaxed by acid hurling that injured four students, two so seriously they were confined to the hospital.

Carl Zaffke, Brainerd, Minn., was identified by fellow students as the youth who tossed a milk bottle of sulphuric acid into a ballot box showering acid over four poll watchers.

Those burned by the fluid were Jacqueline Holleran, Minneapolis, and Howard Meagher, Hopkins, Minn. Under treatment at the university health service were Donald Robertson, Fergus Falls, Minn., and Thomas Kochemacher, Minneapolis.

Physicians said the condition of none was serious but that scars might be left.

Undergraduates were roused over the acid tossing, latest incident of a tumultuous week of elections already marked by slugfests, ballot box thefts and publication of an unauthorized political newspaper.

University authorities and student leaders opened a thorough investigation of the violence of a committee whose identity was kept secret. What action would be taken had not been determined.

TAKES BATH IN PUBLIC

Crowd Watches Cornelia's Ablutions, But She's Only Statue, You See

COLUMBUS, O., April 23.—Meek and unshamed, her face immobile and serene, a young matron stood rigidly in the grounds of the state capitol today and submitted to a thorough scrubbing.

She was surrounded by curious men and women, and offered no protests as acid, graphite and oil were applied to her face, neck and body.

The martyr was Cornelia, the Roman matron, mother of the famous Gracchi.

Cornelia has stood on the same spot, the top of the pedestal on which are "Ohio's Jewels," since her features were molded from bronze by a sculptor in the nineties.

The interesting ceremony featured a roughly clad laborer who spat tobacco juice as he, standing on a teetering ladder, applied a brush on the rigid maiden. It attracted a sizeable audience, for the statues, green with verdigris, have not been touched for almost fourteen years.

The effigy of Cornelia occupies the topmost position among a group of bronze statues on a substantial and symmetrical pedestal of granite. The figures about central shaft are statues of Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Stanton, Garfield, Hayes, and Chase.

The imposing group of statues was placed on the grounds of the world's fair in Chicago in 1893, representing Ohio.

These, and the McKinley Memorial, which occupies a commanding position at the western entrance of the capitol grounds, are being washed and coated with graphite by order of Christian Zimmer, foreman in charge of capitol buildings and grounds.

In past years irate citizens have protested against the dilapidated state of statues on the capitol grounds. They remained unwashed because it was believed application of acid preparations would harm them.

The formula for washing the statues was obtained from Ohio State University.

SMALL BOY AND GROCER SHOT; TWO ARRESTED

Boy Shot Twice When He Screams During Hold-up

DETROIT, April 23.—An eight-year-old boy—Billy Reynolds—and Garnet Ritchie, 37, grocer, lay on their hospital cots today fighting for life because two hoodlums ran amuck last night with guns.

The men, Frank Mohr, 29, and Ted Lally, 28, were arrested after a running gun fight with police.

Billy had gone with his father, an unemployed contractor, to the grocery to sell a magazine. Entering they saw Ritchie at bay before the leveled guns of the bandits. While they watched Ritchie suddenly turned and dashed for the rear of the store. A shot rang out and he fell wounded.

With a shrill cry Billy turned and ran. One of the bandits wheeled and shot him. He stumbled wounded on the floor. A second shot struck him in the side as one of the hoodlums turned to fire again as they fled.

Outside, the bandits started their escape followed closely by a police cruiser with siren screaming a pathway through crowded traffic. With capture apparent they leaped from the car and ran. They were brought to a halt and surrender a moment later when a police bullet struck Mohr in the hand.

The ship struck the top of a large oak tree which broke its fall," Bahr said.

BROTHER, SISTER DROWNED IN RESCUE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 23.—A brother and sister were dead today, drowned in an effort to save a companion who got beyond his depth in a small pool near the city last night.

The victims are Odelle and Clusters Marshall, aged 11 and 10 respectively. With a number of other children they had been wading about the pool. Elliott Weaver, 6, got beyond his depth. His two companions plunged in after him. They got into a deep hole and sank. Weaver was unable to reach shore without help.

FOUR KILLED

BRUSSELS, April 23.—Four men were killed today at Langue-marck by the explosion of a large German shell they were removing from the old Ypres war sector.

FARM BOARD MEMBERS WILL GET WAGE SLASH IN ECONOMY BILL

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Salaries of federal farm board members will be reduced from $12,000 to $10,000 under the general economy bill which a special house committee was completing today. The bill will be placed before the house next week.

Similar reductions will be made in the $12,000 salaries of the shipping board and the board of mediation. The $10,000 salaries of the international joint commission will be cut to $5,000.

The committee agreed to include in the bill a provision giving President Hoover the authority he requested to reorganize the executive departments of the government. The move would have power to veto these changes. In the case

Will Greta Garbo Wed?

GRETA GARBO

LONDON, April 23.—The Daily Mail reported today that Greta Garbo, Swedish film star, would be married soon to Wilhelm Sorenson, son of a Stockholm financier.

According to the Daily Mail correspondent at Stockholm, the wedding will be in Berlin. It was understood that Sorenson and Prince Sigvard arrived in Berlin recently to complete arrangements for it.

The Daily Mail said Miss Garbo would leave Hollywood for Berlin at the end of April. She was understood to have met Sorenson in 1928.

HOLLYWOOD, April 23.—That Greta Garbo, film star, will marry Wilhelm Sorenson, son of a Swedish financier, as reported in London, was doubted today by her motion picture associates. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials said they "doubted" there was any truth to the reports. Miss Garbo, who holds a contract with M-G-M, could not be reached for a statement.

REPORT LINDBERGH NEGOTIATORS SAIL ON SECRET MISSION

Yacht Puts To Sea; Reports Colonel Thanks Press

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 23.—Hope for progress in the search for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's kidnaped son shifted to Norfolk today with the word that a sailing yacht had put to sea on a mission believed to concern the case.

Reports from Norfolk indicated John Hughes Curtis, contact man for the southern negotiators, may have been aboard the yacht Marcon. Dean H. Dobson-Peacock, associated with Curtis, offered no explanation of the boat trip.

Curtis and Dean Dobson-Peacock returned from New York late yesterday in a plane piloted by George L. Richard, naval flier. The former conferred with Col. Lindbergh at his home on Sourland Mountain.

Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrege, third of the negotiators, issued a short bulletin after the three had conferred for two hours following the return of Curtis and the minister. It said:

"Mr. Curtis and Dean Dobson-Peacock and Lieut. George L. Richard returned about 4:30 this afternoon (Friday) by plane. Dean Dobson-Peacock went to New York to cooperate with Mr. Curtis. Mr. Curtis conferred with Col. Lindbergh, who requested us to continue our work. Col. Lindbergh stated to Mr. Curtis he appreciated the cooperation of the press in not attempting to follow his representatives and again through us requested that they continue their cooperation."

KILLED AT CROSSING

SOUTH WEBSTER, O., April 23.—Leonard Cunningham, 20, was killed today when his automobile struck a Baltimore and Ohio Passenger train. The accident occurred when Cunningham, father of four children, turned to wave to a friend.

STUBENVILLE, O., April 23.—

The body of Dr. Carol S. Cole, St. Louis woman physician, missing since the crash March 21, of a night airplane plane enroute from Columbus to Pittsburgh, was found today by Arch Forman, government lock dam employee here. Harold George, pilot, also was killed when the plane fell in the Ohio River.

The body was identified by John Funk, government diver who had been given an accurate description of the woman by Dr. E. H. Skinner, Kansas City, brother of the missing woman.

Dr. Carol was enroute to the east to attend a daughter who was injured in an automobile accident. The crash occurred during a storm.

BOARD LEARNS LOAN APPEARS ONLY HOPE FOR REGULAR TERM

Can Borrow Against August Settlement To Remain Open

Xenia banks will be asked to come to the rescue of the more than 2,100 pupils and teachers in the city's public schools.

An attempt to negotiate a loan for about $20,000 to finance continued operation of the high schools until the end of the present term, May 27, and of the elementary schools at least until May 13, will be made by the board of education early next week.

Local banks will be given the first opportunity to lend the money to the school board, at 6 per cent interest.

Should they decide not to make the loan, the school board understands it will be able to borrow the desired amount from the state teacher's retirement fund.

The suggestion that the school board borrow money against the anticipated share of the city schools in the August real estate tax settlement was made by the state department of education Friday.

Faced with the prospect of a curtailed school term, J. D. Adair, president and Louis F. Clark, clerk of the school board, and Louis Hammerle, superintendent, conferred at Columbus Friday with Dr. B. O. Skinner, state director of education, and Joseph W. Fichter, his assistant.

They went on to state that the Xenia schools are eligible for state aid, but that financial assistance would be forthcoming only for operation of the grade schools for an eight-month term, and the high schools for two weeks extra.

Since opening of the first school semester was delayed two weeks last fall, the eight-month term for elementary schools would expire May 13, and the eight and one-half month term for the high schools would end May 27.

In former years both the elementary and high schools have been operated a full nine-month term.

The school board, in seeking a way out of a financial dilemma, had decided to lay the matter before state education department officials.

The board was advised it could legally borrow money on the anticipated $57,000 share of the schools in the August real estate tax distribution.

It is estimated that $20,000 will take care of three more teachers' payrolls and wipe out bills amounting to nearly $5,000, unpaid since January.

With a $500 semi-monthly payroll falling due next Friday, the board is anxious to have Xenia banks make the desired loan. It would take more time to negotiate a loan from the state teachers' retirement fund, and school teachers might have to wait for their next pay.

The board, at its regular meeting next Thursday, will also decide whether merely the high schools will be operated until the original closing date, May 27, and the grade schools dismissed two weeks earlier, or whether the entire city school system will be run for the next five weeks.

EXECUTOR IS SUED;
JUDGMENT IS GIVEN

Attorney J. Carl Marshall, in his capacity as executor of the estate of Carry Curl deceased, is named defendant in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by William M. Ellis, who seeks a judgment for $1,540 from the estate for services given the defendant from March 2, 1926 to February 14, 1932.

Declaring his services were reasonably worth $5 a week, the plaintiff asserts that his claim, when presented to the executor, was rejected. Marcus Shoup is attorney for the plaintiff.

OVERRULE MOTION

Denying a motion for a new trial, Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy has decreed that Ruth H. Kirkpatrick, Columbus, is entitled to recover a judgment for $437.50, full amount sought, against the Glens Falls Indemnity Co., surety on the bond of T. C. Long, former Xenia estate broker. The case involved alleged fraud in a real estate transaction.

FILES APPEAL

Simon Shoemaker and Emmaline Harrington have filed an appeal in Common Pleas Court from the court of Theodore F. Longenecker, Bath Twp. justice of the peace, where J. B. Roberts recovered a judgment for $56.56.

TABER WILL SPEAK AT TABERNACLE

Louis J. Taber, National Grange master, who is to appear in Xenia Thursday, will speak at a mass meeting at the Tabernacle, E. Third St., at 3 p. m., it was announced Saturday. The meeting is open to the public.

Mr. Taber, candidate for United States senator, is being brought here by a group of non-political organizations including the Greene County W. C. T. U., Greene County Farm Bureau, Greene County Ministerial Association and Granges of the county. The Rev. R. W. Knapp, Spring Valley, is chairman of the arrangements committee.

The combined boys' and girls' glee clubs of Wilberforce University will sing and special music will be furnished by the Revelers' quartet of Cedarville College.

TUBELESS RADIO MAY REVOLUTIONIZE ETHER

By JACK CEJNAR
Central Press Correspondent

COLUMBUS, Ind., April 23.—Ernest Patrick, local inventor and Indiana's "boy Edison," celebrated his twenty-first birthday anniversary today by announcing the perfection of a tubeless radio.

The invention is expected to revolutionize the radio industry. It banishes the vacuum tube from the receiving set. It is said to conquer static.

Without a tube of any kind, but using a strange, new wiring hook-up, young Patrick's amazing apparatus draws from the ether voices and music far smoother and mellower than can be achieved by any tube set. It operates on alternating current.

Economy will distinguish the radio receiver of the future, based on the tubeless principle. There will be no tubes to bother with. The tubeless radio needs only one-half of the electricity necessary to operate the tube set. A tubeless receiver will give life time service as there will be nothing to wear out.

are brought in instantly at the touch of the dial; and each turn of the dial brings in the desired station at its full strength without the slightest delay.

"As may be readily understood, the absence of tube noises creates a remarkable smooth, vibrant, mellow and natural tone depth which characterizes the tubeless principle in comparative tests which were made with sets that employ tubes. Extraneous noises and static also are reduced to a new low level, which is almost beyond all comprehension. The economy and satisfaction that this tubeless radio will confer upon the public everywhere is self-evident, and will I believe, materially widen the use and enjoyment of radio."

Still in High School

Equally amazing to the scientists who have tested the tubeless radio, is the young inventor himself. He has not finished high school. Yet he has displayed an intensive grasp of the most complex problems of electrical science that has astounded many of the leading scholars and authorities on the subject, with whom he has come into contact. Young Patrick for years has read every issue of every leading radio and electrical periodical. What he read he remembered.

Born at Glasgow, Ky., April 7, 1911, Ernest started from the most humble surroundings. When his family moved to Aberdeen, Miss., March 4, 1921, they made the trip in two covered wagons, taking fifteen days for the journey. Four months later they moved back to Glasgow in the same old-fashioned way. They settled in Bartholomew County, Indiana, Jan. 18, 1924. Ernest attended Edinburg, Ind., high school. Today he lives here in Columbus, Ind., in a cozy new bungalow purchased with the first returns of his genius.

WHEAT SUPPLIES DISAPPEAR;
NEW CROP REPORTED CURTAILED

COLUMBUS, O., April 23.—A bulletin issued today by the Ohio Farm Bureau said wheat supplies had been "disappearing rapidly" during the past three weeks, the net decline in the visible supply for this period showing a loss of approximately 16,277,000 bushels.

C. W. Eberhard, head of the Ohio Farm Bureau Grain Department, asserted that part of the disappearance could be attributed to the red cross wheat, but that it was largely due to the small arrivals at terminal markets, he added that it was "encouraging from the standpoint of getting supplies out of our show windows and making room for the nearby harvest movement."

that the crop was very seriously curtailed throughout Kansas, Nebraska and Texas.

"Ordinarily," said Eberhard, April and May are good growing months and conditions improve throughout this period, but this year seems to be the exception. If dry weather proves severe during June and July, further damage is assured."

The grain expert stressed there apparently was "little to fear from wheat shortage within the next year," pointing out that an estimated carry over of old wheat of 400,000,000 bushels, combined with a probable crop of 700,000,000 bushels would leave a surplus of $500,000,000.

Good Gardening

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Garden Expert for Central Press and The Gazette

Gardens That Attract Birds

"WONDER what has happened to the birds around here?" asked my neighbor. "We used to have any number of them. But they don't seem to stay. What can one do to get them back?"

"There's only one real answer," I told him. "You will have to plant trees and shrubs which provide shelter and food for the birds."

A bird bath and bird houses in a garden always attract birds, although some prefer to build nests in thorny trees or shrubs which marauding cats find difficult to penetrate. A border of evergreens also serves to give the birds shelter and protection from chill winds.

A garden can also be made a haven for birds if it is well planted with berryed shrubs the fruits of which serve as food for the feathered visitors.

WILL TEST BEAVER
SCHOOL ON TUESDAY

In compliance with an order of the Court of Appeals, a test to determine the safety factor of the load-bearing walls of the centralized school building in Beavercreek Twp., will be made at 10 a. m. next Tuesday by The W. H. Howard Construction Co., general contractor.

Following the direction of the appellate court, the contractor poured the second floor concrete slab for the building this week, preparatory to making the scheduled test, which is expected to show the strength of the walls.

STUDENTS RECEIVE
HONORS AT SCHOOL

Miss Frances Jack, Roger St., and Howard Flatter, Osborn, students at Wittenberg College, Springfield, were among students of that school who received recognition at the twentieth annual "Honor Day" convocation of the school Friday.

Honors went to students who have done their college work so well that single and double stars accompany their names in the school's annual catalogue. A two-star student has a perfect record and a single star student has a most admirable record.

Howard Kany, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kany, Dayton, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kany, this city, was elected to "Blue Key," an honorary booster fraternity at the college, during the "Honor Day" observance.

MOOSE TO INSTALL
NEW OFFICIALS

L. G. Batson will be installed as dictator of Xenia Lodge, No. 1629, Loyal Order of Moose, at installation ceremonies at the Moose Hall, W. Main St., Wednesday evening. The installation will be in charge of Charles Shirey, junior past dictator.

Other officers to be installed include Samuel Kiser, vice dictator; R. A. Slagle, prelate; C. W. Tindall, treasurer; J. Comfort, R. J. Christopher and E. Willett, trustees. Supper will be served following the installation.

MANY CITIES TURN
CLOCKS AHEAD SOON

It will not be necessary for Xenians to rise in the wee hours of the morning, otherwise known as 2 a. m. Sunday, and advance their clocks ahead one hour.

Xenia remains on Eastern Standard time throughout the year.

In fifteen other states, daylight savings time will become effective Sunday and remain in force during the summer months.

What have you learned today
in the New University?

Talk with almost any woman and you will find her amazingly informed on vitamins, balanced diets, refrigeration, household sanitation, labor saving, family hygiene, table and home decoration. Watch her during her day and you will find her employing this new knowledge for the improvement of living.

Talk with almost any man and you'll find him technically informed about motor-cars and adding machines, aeroplanes and radios, telephones and oil burners—materials, designs, uses, processes in a dozen fields.

What has happened? It seems that people know more than they used to and that they use their new-found knowledge to their comfort and happiness. Perhaps this is the explanation: There is today a New University—the University of Advertising. Its doors never close, it is open to all and the fees of admission are the daily price of a newspaper. The subjects taught are ways to make life better and more enjoyable. Eminent authorities in the various fields work with skilled writers and illustrators to prepare the daily "lessons"—the advertisements. They are admirably printed and illustrated. They are studied and applied, as needed, by the youngsters and grown-ups of all ages.

What have you learned today in the New University? Study the advertisements. Useful knowledge is waiting there for you.

County High Schools Enjoy Reception

THE outstanding social event of the school year for members of junior and senior classes of Greene County high schools took place Friday evening when the annual junior-senior banquet was held at Alford Gymnasium, Cedarville College.

Mrs. Russell William Magna of Holyoke, Mass., is the new president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, elected at Washington during the organization's forty-first continental congress.

MUST REDUCE TAX COSTS SAYS BRADEN

COLUMBUS, April 23.—Culinary experience as a farmer, business man and state official has convinced George C. Braden, chairman of the state tax commission, that the time is crucial for a readjustment of cost of governmental administrative operations.

In a statement today to the Farm Bureau, of which he is a member, Braden, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for secretary of state, pledged cooperation to this end. "Taxes on real estate have reached almost confiscatory proportions, and it is not healthful economically that this should be so," he said. "In consequence taxes must be reduced and to obtain a reduction there has to be a curtailment of expenditures in governmental operation."

FOUR LEGGED CHICKEN BORN DUMBARTON, Va.—A four legged chicken was recently hatched on the Berger farm here. All of the chicken's other Broad Rock brothers and sisters have to run along on two legs.

Mr. Robert T. "Terri" Sinclair, class of '31 was a guest over the week-end at Kappa Kastle.

Miss Goldie Smith of the class of '24 was seen on the campus last Saturday.

President and Mrs. G. H. Jones and Miss G. E. Jackson were in Columbus last Saturday.

Friends of Miss Rosa Lee Lloyd of the college of liberal arts, were happy to see her return to the campus this week after a serious operation in the hospital in Springfield.

Miss Virginia Foy left school last Saturday for her home in Charleston, W. Va., because of illness. She was accompanied by her mother.

Dr. and Mrs. William Method of Columbus, spent Sunday with their son Charles, who is taking work in the college of liberal arts.

Mrs. Melvina Nelson, of Indianapolis, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson.

Mrs. L. C. Fisher, after a three weeks' visit with relatives in Oberlin, O., has returned home.

Mrs. Lillian Foster, of Cincinnati University, and who is engaged in child study work in the vicinity of Cincinnati, was a visitor of friends on the campus, Sunday.

Mrs. Carrie Scott, of Columbus, arrived Tuesday and will spend several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. A. M. Chavous.

Mr. and Mrs. William Brown motored to Cincinnati Sunday, and spent the day with Mrs. Brown's sister.

Mrs. Gladys Byron Sheppard of Baltimore, Md., arrived on the campus the early part of the week. She spent her time looking after the welfare of the Delta Sigma Theta sororities. Mrs. Sheppard is the grand president and brought special greetings from the national organization to the Beta and Delta Sigma sororities. She formerly lived in Memphis, Tenn., and attended school here, graduating from the normal department in 1921 and entered Chicago University and received her master's degree. She is now employed in the public schools of Baltimore. While on the campus she was entertained by Misses Grace Woodson, Lucinda Cook, Anna O'H. Williamson and Mrs. Charles Smith.

Members of the senior commercial teachers class, and their instructors, Prof. Charles Smith, Misses Mamie Winbush and Jessie H. A. Smith attended the "open night" of Central High School, Tuesday evening. The same group with the teacher training class of the economics division, accompanied by their director, Mrs. Alberta Whitaker, attended the opening of the East Junior and Senior High Schools, Thursday evening in Xenia.

Mr. A. M. Chavous, director of vocations, who recently received his master's degree from Ohio State University, was in Columbus last week to join his brother Jared and three sisters, Clara, Martha and Charlotte extending congratulations to their father, Mr. Charles Chavous, who was retired on a pension after serving thirty-two years as a member of the Columbus police department.

The district conference of the Springfield district held a two day session in Euclid Avenue A. M. E. Church in Dayton, this week. The Rev. J. B. Bell, who has charge of the work within the district, was the presiding officer. Those attending from Wilberforce were Rev. L. C. Ridley, President Gilbert H. Jones and Mr. C. C. Turner, representing Trinity A. M. E. Church. Part of the session was devoted to the chautauqua movement for the raising of funds for educational work at Wilberforce University.

Zeta and Rho Omega chapters of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority presented their annual program in Galloway auditorium Sunday, April 17, 1932 at 7:30 p. m. Miss Jessie Bonner was mistress of ceremonies; prayer was offered by Mrs. Gertrude L. Holland; the history of the organization was given by Miss Gertrude Jackson; a musical selection was rendered by Mrs. Grace Edwards-Waites; Miss Lillian Williamson, basileus of Zeta chapter, introduced the speaker, who was Mrs. Margaret Davis Bowen, of Cincinnati, O.

Mrs. Bowen gave an interesting talk on "Choosing Your Life's Work." Among other things Mrs. Bowen stressed "one should have a knowledge of one's self and above all, whatever you do, do it well or not at all." Through the courtesy of Mrs. Bowen, a poem, entitled "Be the Best Whatever You Are," was given each person as they entered the auditorium by the usher.

A solo, "Trees," was sung by Miss Helen Miller, followed by a reading "The Ivy," by Miss Beatrice Woolridge. The closing number was the hymn by members of the sorority. Each member wore a red rose. The stage was decorated with palms and the banner of the sorority. The ushers were members of the Ivy Leaf Club, a pledge club of the organization, who were Misses Grace McCall, Helen Hill, Evelyn Thompson, Martha Angelo, Sarah Swann, Minnie Sims, Zella Richardson, and Farnella Elliott.

The women are making arrangements to have a packed house on the night the play is given and expect the persons taking part in the cast to be the drawing card. The cast is as follows: Deborah Underhill, a mother in Israel, Mrs. Gertrude Holland; Wilbur Bill Pindie, leader of the choir, Mrs. Alma Warwick; Lowmy Loviny Custard, Plain Sewing and Gossip, Mrs. Olive David; Isabel Simpscott, the village belle, Miss Evelyn Thompson; Gloriana Perkins, as good as gold, Mrs. Sunie Green; Sukey Pindie, the Wilber's Mite, Miss Iva Turner; John Underhill, the Prodigal Son, Mr. James Hargraves; Charley Underhill, the Elder Brother, Mr. Edward Anderson; Brother Jonah Quackenbush, a White Sepulchre, Mr. Ottowa Greenfield; Jeremiah Gosling, "Jerry," a Merry Heart, Mr. William Anderson; Enoch Bone, an Outcast and a Wanderer, Mr. Porter Streeter; Quintus Todd, the County Sheriff, Mr. Henry Thompson.

H. S. Wygant, Colonel, U. S. Army (Retired), is in receipt of an advanced notice stating the annual inspection of the R. O. T. C. Unit at Wilberforce University will be held at 9:30 o'clock, Friday morning, April 29. The officers detailed by the War Department to hold the inspection are Lt. Col. H. D. Solton, Infantry, Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis, Ind. and Major C. A. Bagby, Infantry, Fort Hays, Columbus, Ohio. The men of the R. O. T. C. are anxious that the inspection will reflect credit not only to the unit, but to their instructors, Col. Wygant and Major O. J. Kincaid, as well as the university, and they are very busy preparing for the inspection. The program for the inspection will be posted in a few days.

The cadet officers of the R. O. T. C. raised the standard of social activities on the campus, Friday evening of last week when they held their first initial banquet in Arnett dining room. Sixty or more guests were seated at the well trimmed and laden tables. Cadet Second Lieutenant Alvin L. Brownlee, the toastmaster for the occasion, introduced the several speakers. Col. H. S. Wygant, D. O. L. (retired) in charge of military science and tactics, addressed the guests. He pointed out very vividly that the Reserve Officers' Training Corps' program was in compliance with the National Defense Act of 1920, but there was no reason to believe that the prime motive of the act was to serve as an agency for the development of soldiers, but that it had as its program the development of a cultured men.

Mr. F. A. McGinnis, dean of the college of liberal arts, and Mr. E. Champ Warrick, superintendent of the C. N. and I. department, expressed their appreciation for the military department. The other distinguished guests present were Major O. J. Kincaid, Cadet Major Henry Scott, Captains James Nichols, O. N. G., and Grover Harding, First Lieutenants J. A. Lane, William Madison, Chas. Points, Jr., M. M. Purdue, (chaplain); Second Lieutenants William H. Martin and Cyrus T. Russell.

Owing to a conflict in dates, the play "In Review," to be produced by the W. C. T. U., Sunday, April 24th, 3 p. m., has been postponed until the second Wednesday night, May 10th at 7 p. m.

Mr. A. M. Chavous, who recently received his master's degree from Ohio State University reviewed his thesis, "A Study of Vocational Education of Wilberforce University" at the Study Club, Thursday evening. He stated that school records reveal that 67 per cent of students in attendance at Wilberforce University, from Ohio, live within fifty miles of the institution. Seventy per cent of these students are of college age. Student interests, gauged by choice of occupation, curriculum selected, and fathers' occupations indicate that 46 per cent of Wilberforce students are out of an industrial background or are interested, more or less, in the technical and industrial aspects of education.

One hundred and three out of a total of 116 replies received favored increase emphasis on industrial and technical education for colored youth. With almost equal unanimity, Wilberforce was considered as the logical place for much training to be offered in the state.

Seventeen firms and industrial establishments were reported as being favorable to the establishment of co-operative part-time relations with the university for students in training in various trades. Work of this type was found available in twenty different occupations.

Rev. L. C. Ridley is arranging a series of sermons to deliver on Sunday mornings for the remainder of the school year. The first of the series will start Sunday morning at 10:40 o'clock, "The Call to Youth." The last sermon of the series will be given Sunday, May 23, one week before the Baccalaureate sermon for Commencement exercises, June 4th.

"You Might Call it a Peculiar Reason"

"The thing I like most about Chesterfields . . . is the neat way they're made. It may sound fussy . . . probably does . . . but I just can't bear to get little crumbs of tobacco in my mouth.

"I never really enjoyed smoking until I discovered Chesterfields. Perhaps you have noticed how nicely they're filled. Every one of them is rolled just right.

"And do you know . . . the more I smoke Chesterfields, the better I like the taste. It's not raw . . . and it's not over-sweet. It's just sweet enough so that you never tire of it. I find Chesterfields are really milder, too!"

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Drink waters out of thine own cistern, and running waters out of thine own well.—Proverbs, v, 15.

THE LINDBERGH CASE

It is probable there has never been a case of the nature of the Lindbergh kidnapping that has developed a greater number of apparent false rumors and blind leads than has this case.

For a time it seemed possible the first-born of the nation's ace aviators, might have been in possession of a group of persons seen in and about a tourist camp; then it was thought to be on a boat at sea; again the possibility loomed that the child had been spirited to foreign shores; and then only as recently as the current week came the suspicion that a child in possession of a woman seen at a beauty parlor at St. John, New Brunswick, Canada, might be the long-sought kidnap victim. The woman, claiming the child was a girl, became alarmed when an operator discovered it was a male and hurriedly departed.

If, as was evidently the case, it was not the Lindbergh infant, why did the woman act in such a peculiar manner? The answer, probably is simple. Knowing that she was innocent, she perhaps had reasons for not wanting to submit to the delay which proving this fact, would have entailed, an experience to which many have been subjected as suspicion has been widespread.

There have been many kidnappings in the past but criminal history tells of none in which those who have joined in the search included a greater number or variety. Ordinarily, regular police agencies have been considered sufficient, but in the search for the Lindbergh baby state troopers have been enlisted, private detectives, federal agencies, prohibition forces, friends of the family who anticipate no reward other, perhaps, than appreciation and a personal realization of a good deed accomplished; all have joined forces.

Even as underworld characters, who in the natural course of events might have been expected to remain with hands folded and admire the handwork of others of their own kind, tried to lend a helping hand, a minister, following other channels, was similarly engaged. Ransom has been paid, the law, apparently has done everything within its power, individuals, organizations, all others so far have encountered only the proverbial stone wall—the child of Colonel Charles Lindbergh is still missing.

There is a solution; someone has the answer but as we ponder over the details of the case we cannot but realize that there seems to be a clever mind somewhere that for almost two months, has defied all laws and efforts of man and that should cause us to realize that there is no greater need in our country today than the discovery of ways and means of curbing the activities of those who have neither consideration nor respect for law and order, for the feelings of fellow beings or for the very sacredness of the home and parent-hood.

REGARDING COLUMBUS

It cannot be said that Dr. David Fairchild opens up a new subject for debate when he returns from a Caribbean cruise to assert that the piece of land now known as San Salvador or Watling's Island, is not, in fact, the spot where Christopher Columbus first landed in the Western Hemisphere.

Dr. Fairchild insists that the original San Salvador must have been elsewhere, because the old record says it was wooded, and Watling's is innocent of anything more impressive than brush.

Other people have been equally skeptical about Watling's Island, though possibly for different reasons. The relatively more considerable Cat Island lying to the northwest of modern San Salvador has been a rival claimant to fame with some students, and still others have been attracted by the pretensions of a small key to the south of Salvador. On the whole, about all that can be definitely and finally asserted regarding the landing place of Columbus is this: On a night of nights in 1492 a sailor called Rodrigo de Triana, who was aboard the Nina, saw a light ahead, where for weary weeks there had been nothing but sea by day, and blackness by night. Next morning, a low lying land lay in sight. This land was a little island which the natives called Guanahani. There Columbus went ashore.

If somebody, some day, can learn which of the almost innumerable Bahama keys and islands, the now extinct Caribs called Guanahani, the mystery of the location of Columbus' San Salvador may be cleared up; otherwise it is likely to remain a matter of uncertainty till the end of time.

THE RAILROADS

The big trunk line railroads announce an all but complete elimination of extra fares on fast limited trains, and extensions of coach service to trains hitherto operated as "all-Pullman" fliers. The changes are in harmony with the times.

Anybody who rides much on trains must have noticed the way in which "ordinary day coaches," which for some inexplicable reason were rather despised by thousands of travelers in the days of general opulence, have been coming into their own again. The demands for first-class trains carrying them have been on the increase and their absence has at times unquestionably diverted travel to competitors of the steam roads. The determination of the roads to make them available on all classes of trains is a practical recognition of business conditions and public demand and also of the sharpness of the competition being provided by other means of location.

Likewise, though the average American greatly desires to travel in comfort and with speed, most of all perhaps with speed, the question of cost is looming large in his eyes just at present, so that most of the extra-fare trains have been showing a tendency to become heavy financial burdens on the railroads instead of assets. People have liked the service those trains give, but they have liked still more the idea of saving a few dollars by traveling simply. The roads are wise in deciding to give the service without exacting the extra fare. Other things being equal, most people would rather travel by steam road than in any other way.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—From a Columnist's Personal Record: More letters denounce Grant's Tomb than any other sightseer's goal. . . . Denounce it, not architects, naturally or because of Confederate sympathies, but simply because the writers are tired of hearing about it and being ushered to it immediately upon arrival. . . . Fifth Avenue buses receive the most boosts in my mail. . . . "Sitting up front near the driver's place makes my hair curl," one young lady writes. . . . Few seem to be interested in Chinatown anymore, although tour barkers in Times Square tell me business was boomed briefly by the Far East fracas.

I got fed up hearing about Broadway, yet every time I pace it at the theater hour I have to pause and admit that it is the most astounding midway in the world. . . . so tawdry that it achieves a sort of loveliness getting that way. . . . And if I'm away from the street for a single night I go back to discover some outlandish new catchpenny parlor of phoney wonders yawning for passersby. . . . I fall for them all with the naive anticipation of the veriest countryman.

One broadcasting concern, I am told, gets 500 letters a week as a result of its fifteen-minute program dedicated to stamp collectors. . . . My own mail runs a few letters a month asking about old coins. . . . But of course the theme that shadows them all is and has been radio.

And next to that is the movies. . . . Third, curiously enough, is the career of letters. . . . I seem to have a large following of aspiring writers, who read me, it may be, to keep in mind what to avoid.

CONCERNING AGENTS

For the benefit of the last-named constituency, I want to attempt the answer here of an oft-repeated query. . . . The conviction seems to be abroad that once a good literary agent is acquired, all that's necessary is a steady stream of stories. . . . I wish that were the case! . . . The truth is that an agent, no matter how good his or her reputation, can do little or nothing to help a beginning writer. . . . Where the agent serves is in getting better prices for a story or book once it is sold.

MATTERS OF TASTE

Ray Long's new anthology of "Twenty Best Short Stories in Twenty Years as an Editor" fascinates me as an amazing assembly of absolutely first-rate and absolutely mystifying work. . . . Ernest Hemingway and Peter B. Kyne in the same volume! . . . To these eyes, "There's Always Juliet" and "The Animal Kingdom" are most compelling theatrical fare offered at this writing in Manhattan. . . . The reason Rudy Vallee spoke of himself to President Hoover as "another Californian" is that he has recently purchased a $100,000 estate there.

WINDFALL

In a time of gloom it is pleasant to report such cherty little episode as this: An old friend of the family told me yesterday that she has received, in the past two months, two checks, one for $10,000 and one for $2,200 which it took her weeks to discover the justification for. . . . One was on a lease, stemming from her great grandmother, in which she never suspected she had an equity. . . . The other was for back-royalties on a book written by her grandfather and somehow tied up. . . . She was worth exactly $300 and had no prospect of more when the windfalls arrived.

SOTTO VOCE

Reri, that amazing child of the tropics, imported to New York for a revue after her hit in the beautiful movie, "Tabu," pulled a fast one on me the other day when she guest-starred for me on the air. . . . She inserted in her brief "Hello, everybody!" which she crooned in French, Tahitian and English, the following Tahitian greeting (explained to me afterward): "Hi, Ted, I love you!"

Poems That Live

HEMLOCK MOUNTAIN

By orange grove and palm-tree, we walked the southern shore, Each day more still and golden than was the day before. That calm and languid sunshine! How faint it made us grow To look on Hemlock Mountain when the storm hangs low!

To see its rock pastures, its sparse and hardy corn, The mist roll off its forehead before a harvest morn: To hear the pine-trees crashing across its gulfs of snow Upon a roaring midnight when the whirlwinds blow.

Tell not of lost Atlantis, or fabled Avalon; The olive, or the vineyard, no winter breathes upon; Away from Hemlock Mountain we could not well forego. For all the summer islands where the gulf tides flow.

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET

Expert Asks Articles On Speech Ills; Stuttering Frequently Neglected By Parents, Says Professor

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education,
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

Dr. Smiley Blanton, who directs a speech clinic at the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, Columbia University, writes as follows:

"I have read your column and wish to tell you how very much I have enjoyed these articles. If the training of children is to be better, and the home improved, parents must receive specific and definite knowledge of the newer methods of training. This educational work, however, must be done by those who are not fondists and who are able to combine the newer psychology with common sense. I am very sincere when I say that you do this to an unusual degree.

"May I suggest that you discuss from time to time the very important problem of speech disorders in children? Speech disorders, especially stuttering, are not infrequently neglected by the physician and the parent. The public school can do much to help by providing teachers of speech correction."

For this encouraging letter by the eminent Dr. Blanton I am, indeed, grateful. I have on several occasions discussed stuttering.

Upon Dr. Blanton's advice, however, I shall try to discuss aspects of this subject more frequently. All my readers who are interested in this subject should go to their public library and borrow, "Speech Training for Children," which Dr. Blanton and his wife wrote. (Probably she wrote most of it as often is the case when a wife helps to write a book, and sometimes when her name does not appear as an author.) Both are speech experts; and although Dr. Blanton may not know it, most of what I have written on speech disorders has been guided more by his contribution than by the work of any other.

As you know, Dr. Blanton directed the Demonstration Child Guidance Clinic carried on in Minneapolis a few years ago by the Commonwealth Fund, later by the public schools. So far as we know it is the first to be organized and paid for by the public schools. Based on his experiences there he wrote an excellent book, "Child Guidance." From that book I wish to quote some things he wrote about stuttering:

"Speech is man's chief medium of adjustment to other people; it is the chief means by which he establishes contact with his fellow beings. Stuttering is caused by the fear, partly conscious and partly subconscious, of meeting the group.

"The child fears to meet the group, but he also desires to do so. He would like to flee away from the situation altogether. At the same time he would like, if possible, to meet it. These tendencies to flee away and to meet the situation come into conflict, and there is a compromise in which neither good speech nor absence of speech results, but broken, inhibited, stuttering speech.

"A search of the emotional life of stuttering children always reveals some of these defects: timidity, strong feelings of inferiority, an over-dependence on the parents, and feelings of inadequacy. "The treatment of stuttering falls under three headings: (a) physical hygiene, (b) mental hygiene, and (c) social hygiene. There's no art to find the mind's construction in the face.—Shakespeare ("Macbeth").

For love's humility is love's true pride.—Bayard Taylor.

giene, by which we mean emotional re-education, and (c) relaxation and training in muscle co-ordination."

GRAB BAG

How did Sing Sing penitentiary get its name?

What is the capital of Michigan?

When did long trousers first appear in the United States?

Correctly Speaking—

"Expect" should not be used for suppose. Say "I suppose it's time for us to go." Not "I expect it's time for us to go."

Today's Anniversary—
On this day, in 1776, South Carolina formed a provisional government.

Today's Horoscope—
Persons born on this day are not very parsimonious, or even saving, when money comes in easily.

Answers to Foregoing Questions

1. Sing Sing is derived from the Indian words for a stony place.

2. Lansing.

3. The fashion of wearing pantaloons was imported from Paris in 1800. It was 10 or 15 years before gay gallants gave up their shorts.

POEMS THAT LIVE

TWILIGHT

Spirit of Twilight, through your folded wings
I catch a glimpse of your averted face,
And rapturous on a sudden, my soul sings
"Is not this common earth a holy place?"

Spirit of Twilight, you are like a song
That sleeps, and waits a singer—like a hymn
That God finds lovely and keeps near Him long.
Till it is choired by aureoled cherubim.

Spirit of Twilight, in the golden gloom
Of dreamland dim I sought you, and I found
A woman sitting in a silent room
Full of white flowers that moved and made no sound.

These white flowers were the thoughts you bring to all,
And the room's name is Mystery where you sit,
Woman whom we call Twilight, when night's pall
You lift across our Earth to cover it.

How To Get Emotional Headache

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Like every other part of the body, the back can ache from several causes. There are three common causes of backache. The first is disease of the structures of the back. The second is reflex from disease elsewhere. The third is emotional.

The structures in the back which cause aching most commonly are the bones of the spine and of the pelvis (most backaches are located low down), the large masses of muscles and tendons which move and support these bones and joints, and the nerves which emerge from the spine in this region. Only rarely is backache due to disease of the vital organs, such as the kidneys or lungs, which lie close to the backbone.

The commonest reflex causes are probably due to pelvic disease in man or woman—tipping of the uterus or prostatic disease. The emotional causes are more frequent than you might imagine. The back is a mental symbol of trouble. "Bearing his burdens on his back"—this is breaking my back—such phrases are indicative of the general association of the back with the loads of the world. When the back aches, the load cannot be borne. Weaklings frequently get out of their just share of the work of the world by having a backache.

Such a case was a young married woman who was brought to a physician by her husband. She complained of backache, yet examination failed to reveal any cause for it. In talking with her the physician found she led an empty, purposeless and, therefore, unhappy life and suggested that she ought to have some children to make her happy. "That's funny," she replied, "that is just what another doctor told me."

"Why is it so funny?" "Well, how could I have any children with this terrible back? I couldn't carry a heavy baby around in my arms."

The physician argued with her awhile to the effect that she could suddenly, she said, "What about my adopting a baby?"

This seemed puzzling, because, as the doctor pointed out to her, carrying an adopted baby around in her arms would be just as hard on her back as carrying one of her own. Finally the whole story came out. Her mother, who had been both had died in childbirth. The idea of facing what she considered such awful danger terrified her. Her backache was a subconscious defense against such a possibility—it was a purely emotional backache, not a physical one.

Among the most important causes of backache is focal infection. This means that a small spot of infection—in a tooth, the tonsils, the nose, or the gallbladder—may get into the blood stream and set up inflammation in the bones, tendons, nerves or muscles of the back.

There is one very important thing about this which physicians have not sufficiently emphasized. After the infection has spread from the focus to the back relief by removing the focus itself is likely to be slow and uncertain. The damage has already been done. The lesson is to tend to your foci of infection before you get the backache.

Boys Prefer Gin To Fireside

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a girl 22 years old and have preferred boys my own age, later going with those 25-30 years old. I have met a man now about 40 years old. He is all I can ask for in a man.

"Is it wrong to go with a man so much older, or to marry one of that age? I have found that the men in their twenties are so inconceivable, wise cracking, fickle and have absolutely no manners. They are just plain 'fresh' and don't mean one thing they say; besides they prefer a 'gin bar' any day to a fireside. Please advise me.

"Honey."

Aren't you going a bit far in your fault finding of modern men to make out a case for this middle-aged man with whom you are enamored? I bet before you met him you didn't find the boys quite so bad. Now did you?

I think it is seldom that a woman can marry a man so much older, and be happy. It has been done, but it is not usual. In your case, in ten years, if you marry this man, he will be 50 and you only 32, 20 years and he will be 60; when he is 70 you will be just over 50. A man of 70 is an old man and a woman of 52 is elderly, maybe, but certainly not old. In fact, as I look about me and see women between 45 and 60 I often think they are having the best time of their lives. Their families are grown and they have more freedom and they lose that careworn look they had when their children were little and grow a bit plumper and have money enough to buy pretty clothes and enjoy life.

Now, mind, I don't say that you couldn't be happy married to this man. He may be wonderful and make you an ideal husband, but it's pretty risky to marry when there is such a difference in ages. I'd wait awhile, if I were you.

"Miss Virginia Lee: I am a married man with a family of five, and have been out of work for 18 months. The money I had saved has all been spent and have had to go in debt to live, and am way behind in my rent."

"I have been all over to get a job, but it seems impossible. I am willing to do anything. I am a handy man, can do most any kind of work and am not afraid to work. All I want is a chance to make an honest living.

"I have a house and lot in another town that has cost me $6,500 and have tried to get a loan of $1,000, first mortgage security on loan, and have been unsuccessful. My place is clear except back taxes which I expect to pay on getting loan. I have been unable to collect my rent as the man who has been living in it has been out of work the same as I.

"Now what can I do to keep from losing my life savings? Sometimes I get so blue I feel like taking a dose of poison and ending it all. I can't sleep nights with this situation staring me in the face. Now what am I to do?

"Despondent Husband."

I'm afraid I can't tell you just what to do to get a job, but I can tell you what not to do, and that is: Don't, I beg of you, do anything rash, such as taking your own life. It would be fair to leave your wife to face the situation alone with the family to support.

It seems as if you should be able to raise money on your property to pay the back taxes and tide you over for a time. Have you tried every possible person or organization that might consider it? I will keep your letter and send your name and address to anyone who thinks they can help. If you will send them to me.

Redwing: I can't understand why this boy doesn't come back to you when you show him so plainly that you desire him. If you are sure he wants to come, why not be courageous and write him a note telling him you are sorry for your part in the quarrel and asking him to come back? Otherwise wait as patiently as possible expecting him to come back if he really means what his friends say he says.

Cites New Eye Tricks

By GLADYS GLAD

Despite the fact that most of us are trying to keep him away from the door, I'm convinced that if the wolf were to meet granny today, it would be he, and not Red Riding Hood, who would very, "Oh, granny! What big eyes you have!" For nowadays, granny is just as well-versed in all the tricks of facial embellishment as her smart, sophisticated granddaughter.

And goodness knows, the well-versed shadow on the eyes will be given a charmingly large, wide-eyed effect.

Through the use of mascara, however, lies in applying the mascara most heavily on the lashes of the outer corner of each eye. Eyeshadow cream, too, can be used to give the eyes an appearance of greater size and width. The eyeshadow cream should not be applied in a narrow strip just above the eye, as some women mistakenly apply it. It should be applied at the lower edge of the lid allowing no margin between it and the lashes.

And if an effect of large eyes is desired, it should be blended lightly toward the inner corner of each eye, and more heavily as it is carried toward the outer corner. If the outer corner of each eye is properly stressed with mascara and eyeshadow cream, the eyes will be given a charmingly large, wide-eyed effect.

SOFTBALL SEASON WILL OPEN MONDAY EVENING AT COX FIELD

Providing the weather is suitable, the sixth season of softball in Xenia, and the third under auspices of the Xenia Playground Association, will make its debut at 8:30 o'clock Monday night before an anticipated overflow crowd at Cox Athletic Field.

The principals in the 1932 season's opener will be the Lang Chevrolet Co., 1930 and 1931 city champions, and The Downtown Country Club, winner of the 1927 and 1929 titles and runnerup to Langs in the National League race last summer.

This contest will usher in the National League campaign, the American League schedule will be initiated Tuesday night with Central High School playing Company L, Xenia's National Guard entry.

Remainder of the schedule for the first week of softball play follows: Wednesday—Xenia Hatchery vs. Spring Valley in National League; Thursday—O. S. and S. O. Home vs. Ex-Highs in American League; Friday—Anderson's Abattoirs vs. Coates Barbers in National League.

Golf Facts, Not Theories MORRISON EXPLAINS NEED OF KEEPING CHIN BACK IN SWING

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is No. 13 of a series of golf lessons by Alex Morrison, golf's star teacher. Watch for the next.

By ALEX J. MORRISON
Golf's Foremost Technician
Written Exclusively for Central Press and The Gazette.

"SINCE YOU are the originator of the phrase, 'keep your chin back' perhaps you will be kind enough to tell us exactly what it means," writes a reader.

I rather welcome the opportunity to explain this phrase because it should be of great help to every golfer. Golfers generally do not have the right idea about the proper position of the head during the swing. Lacking this it is little wonder that they are without a sure way of controlling the head position.

In the first place, it is utterly impossible, as well as unnecessary to hold the head perfectly still during and shot. The most important thing is to keep it from turning. Having discovered this fact I coined the phrase, "keep your chin back" as a positive means of accomplishing the proper head position.

You can keep your head from turning during the swing simply by pointing your chin at the spot just back of the ball and keeping it so pointed until well after the ball has been hit, as can be seen in the accompanying illustration, which shows the windup and unwinding of the upper body during the swing. The chin remains in position.

I can assure you that once you have established the independence of your head over the turning motion of your body, mastering the correct swing will become a simple and an easy job.

This knack will enable you to sense and properly control whatever movements you want to make with your hands, arms or your body. It will give you an entirely new slant on both the mental and physical sides of your swing and immediately take the guess out of your game.

Sisters Score Grand Slam

The three Van Buren sisters of Ogden, Utah, have electrified the sport world by scoring a grand slam in the Intermountain A. A. U. championship meet. The three girls won all the events! They are Veda, left, who won the 100-yard breast stroke dash; Helen, center, 100-yard free style and diving champion, and Shirley, 100-yard back stroke winner. They did same thing last year.

SPYING ON SPORTS

BY WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Sports Editor.

The report that Haskell Indian Institute may lose its collegiate status and become again only a preparatory school with a high school ranking, should alarm all followers of the game.

Haskell football teams have had a personality, a unique quality, which has set them apart from other collegiate eleven. There is drama and romance in the conflict between the Indian teams and their white foes—a modern, peaceable replica of the struggle between red savage and pioneer which was the prelude to the rise of the United States as a great world power. And Haskell always puts up a fine fight if not always a successful one.

In the old days of tomahawk against flintlock, the Indian didn't have a chance. He was always the underdog, always defeated in the end. Football has given the red man his one means of pitting his skill and strength on an equal basis with the white one—and it has been beaten.

The passing of Carlisle Indian school during the war was costly to football. Carlisle's history was one of the most glamorous in gridiron annals and the decision to abandon the school buildings (one-time army barracks) in the Pennsylvania town, turn them into an army hospital and to send the student body to Haskell institute in Lawrence, Kas., may have been a sensible war measure, but it cost football one of its most colorful aggregations.

Gone forever, it seemed, was the spectacle of those brilliant bands of Indian boys crushing to defeat the best football teams colleges could produce; gone forever the thrill of seeing dusky youths do magic things with a football, Indian boys with such intriguing names as Mount Pleasant, Metoxen, Seneca, Lone Star Dietz, Bemus Pierce, Exendine.

There were to be no successors to such brilliant Indian players as Jim Thorpe, Gus Welch, Gus Guyon, Hawley Pierce, Frank Hudson, Pete Calac, George Gardner and Charley Johnson.

Then Dick Hanley, now Northwestern's coach, came to Haskell and once more formidable Indian teams began to invade the citadels of white culture and to return home with scalps of proud colleges.

Though Haskell attained considerable fame under Hanley and the present coach, Dietz, and developed such fine players as the Levi boys, John and George, Louis Weller, Wilson, Charles, Mayes McLain (later a star at Iowa) and Tiny Roebuck (now a heavyweight wrestler) the Lawrence school never attained the heights that belonged to Carlisle.

However, the Haskell Indians revived memories of Carlisle's gridiron days and it is possible that Haskell, if continued as a school of higher learning, may some day give us a football team as great as those that dazzled football fans for two decades.

Haskell succeeded Carlisle, but there can be no football successor to the Haskell Indians since Sherman Indian Institute of California, while having attained some note in other sports, has never figured in the football picture.

Immortalizing "Our Mary"

Starring in a new picture, this time a portrait study by Mrs. Natalie Johnson van Vleck, New York society matron who is rapidly making a name for herself in the realm of art, Mary Pickford is shown as she posed for the finishing touches to the canvas. Though Mary's ringlets which figured largely in her winning the title of "America's Sweetheart," are no more she still retains the warmest corner in the hearts of her public.

Unlucky, My Eye!

It is a blessing for Officer Patrick J. Walsh that he is not overly superstitious, for the number 13 has a remarkable record of cropping up in his life. He is a patrolman at station No. 18, at Jamaica Plain, Mass.; his number is 1313 and he was appointed on Friday the 13th, back in 1919. Not only that. He has three children, Robert, John and Richard, all born on the 13th of the month.

FIND a wooden box and break it up, then buy a bucket of coal and carry it into the kitchen. Next build a fire and keep it going full for half an hour; then empty the grate and carry out the ashes. Would you, when to cook your dinner tonight with gas (four burners on full for 1/2 hour) costs you 1 1/2 cents.

A point in economics of interest to every XENIA WOMAN WHO COOKS

When you go into the butcher's and tell him you want 1 1/2 pounds of round steak at, say, 30c a pound, it is difficult for him to cut off exactly 24 ounces. Suppose he gives you 25 ounces in the cut costing you 47c instead of 45c for 24 ounces. You think nothing of that extra 2c. Yet it more than pays for gas used to cook dinner.

Here are items that cost more, or about the same, as gas for tonight's dinner—

1 egg	1-2 glass of milk	1 potato
1 lb. flour	4 slices of Bread	1-2 lb. cornmeal
1-2 spool thread	1 apple	1 newspaper
1 lump of coal	1 helping peas	a 2c stamp
tax of package cigarettes	2 sticks of gum

FEW ARE VOTING

Absentee voting, considered indicative of public interest in a forthcoming election, is almost a standard at the board of elections. Only ten absentee voters' ballots have been cast by persons expecting to be away from their home voting precincts on primary election day, May 10. Saturday, May 7, is the last day on which applications for absentee ballots may be made.

HAVANA LOBSTERS CHEAP

VESPER SERVICE TO BE BROADCAST

A vesper service, under direction of Lebonah League, composed of young people from Xenia and Dayton, will be broadcast over radio station WSMK, Dayton, Sunday from 5 to 5:30 p. m. Carl Nill, Dayton, musical director of the league, will be in charge of the program and Mrs. Ruth Middleton Buzzard, Dayton, former Xenian, will be one of the soloists. A chorus, of which several Xenians are members, will sing and Mrs. H. E. Eavey, this city, will give a short talk.

Senators Walcott And Tydings To Broadcast

By MILDRED MASON

TWO United States senators, speaking on different subjects at different times will be heard over NBC networks Monday evening. Frederic C. Walcott, senator from Connecticut, will discuss the Glass bank bill when he is heard over WSAI at 9 p. m. Senator Walcott is an exponent of this bill designed to strengthen U. S. banking laws, particularly in regard to prevention of the use of Federal Reserve monies for stock speculation.

Millard E. Tydings, U. S. senator from Maryland, will discuss current political problems in a talk over an NBC network at 9:45 p. m. He will speak from Washington, D. C. and his subject will be "How Government Can Help Cure the Depression."

Southern Singers Featured

The Southern Singers will display their musical versatility when they step out of their role of singing Negro spirituals to sing "Carolina Mammy" and "Goodnight Moon" in the R. F. D. period over WLW, Cincinnati, Monday at 7:15 p. m. Herschel Louche, organist, will be heard on the same program.

To Honor Nebraska.

J. Alden Edkins, winner of the 1931 Atwater Kent national radio audition, will be featured with Elizabeth Lennox, contralto, on the Parade of States' tribute to Nebraska over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, Monday at 8:30 p. m. The program will include tributes to two native Nebraskans—Sterling Morton, who originated Arbor Day, and General John J. Pershing, commandant of the military department of the University of Nebraska in the nineties.

New Program Inaugurated

A new weekly series of broadcasts dedicated to the ballads of yesterday, and starring Kay Donna, 17-year-old contralto, will have its premiere over an NBC-WEAF network through WSAI, Cincinnati, Monday at 9:30 p. m. The program will be known as "Do You Remember?" Miss Donna's broadcast repertoire will consist of popular and light ballads of the past.

Announcer Changes Time

In answer to a number of queries Arthur Ainsworth, WLW announcer, has been changed from WLW's night shift to the day shift. He has been an announcer on evening programs for more than two years and the nervous strain was becoming so great that on the advice of his physicians he was changed to daytime work.

The Story of an Unemployed Girl

CHAPTER 49

BARRY CARLTON looked across the red-checked tablecloth at Lillian and said: "You're not the usual pattern." His eyes held admiration. "What's the usual pattern?" "Oh, Newport languor, Broadway pepper or—"

"Or?"

"Park avenue stupidity."

"I'm glad you brought me here," Lillian turned her eyes from him. "I've never been in one of these before." She glanced about the room, with its high ivory walls and spacious ceiling, which formed a gilded bowl, inverted. A fascinating figure of a Polish dancing girl silhouetted the wall in front of her. The figure was a bright blue. At one end of the room was a small bar, flanked with mirrors and pyramids of crystal glasses. The stools about the bar and the bar itself were the exact shade of lobsters, piles of lobsters.

"Never been in a speakeasy before!" Barry Carlton was sincere in his surprise.

Lillian shook her head.

"Found—a museum object. That's you!"

"But it's charming!"

"Yes, isn't it?" agreed Barry, holding up his cocktail. "So here's to dear old Prohibition."

"Prohibition? What is that? Sounds familiar."

"Really?"

"Prohibition, Prohibition—doesn't one spell the word with a capital?"

"I really wouldn't be an authority, you know."

"Pardon, sir," she said. "A natural mistake."

Yes, one does whisper the word, though for fear small children might hear and dash home to ask their fathers?

"And if their fathers were policemen they wouldn't know."

"Oh, speaking of speakeasies, that started this, didn't it?" asked Lillian, between bites of deliciously baked chicken.

"So many things start in speakeasies," Barry informed her with a smile, "but don't ask me where they finish."

"I'll try to remember," answered Lillian. "But—let's see, now. A speakeasy is the child of Prohibition."

"Prohibition is the little speakeasies' father. There you are."

"There we are."

"Now that we've settled the ancestry of the place, let's find out about the girl, Lillian. Never in a long time, well, if ever have I met a girl like Lillian. Lillian appeared to give her attention to a curled piece of thin toast which she carefully spread with butter.

"Just who are you?" he asked.

"I haven't asked you anything so personal sir!" But she flashed him a smile.

"Oh, I say you're punishing me."

"You don't deserve it?"

"Why do you insist that we sit at a table without a light?" he countered. "I can't see you very plainly. Of course, I know your eyes are brown and your hair is, too, and your teeth are like Norma Talmadge's. But—"

"I'm not dressed in my best bit and tucker, I told you."

"Oh, that! Bother!"

"What time is it?" she reached her fingers over to his sleeve and pushed it up enough to reveal the face of his wrist watch.

"He captured her hand."

"Don't keep remembering the time. This is no place to care about what time it is. You can't find a clock or a calendar in the whole place."

"But, I told you I had to be away a little before nine."

"That's the only thing you've told me I've tried to forget."

"You mustn't let me forget and do let me see your watch."

He still held her hand.

"Let me see your eyes—"

He pulled her toward him a little more.

"I wonder. Are you the girl—"

He dropped her hand.

"I wonder—"

"That Mother met in Paris or somewhere. Are you staying with us?" he brightened with that question.

Lillian's heart beat furiously. She didn't know just what to tell.

"You mean, am I one of those borsome house guests one's mother has and has to bribe one to take places and treat politely?" Lillian's smile was contagious.

"You'd be the exception to all rules—if you were staying with us—I wonder if you're why she wanted to see me all day."

"Perhaps."

"Locked my door. Thought she wanted to remind me of some new ways to behave when coming home when the milk man was leaving or something."

"Suppose she's found any new modes of behavior?" smiled Lillian.

"No doubt."

"I've got to dash," holding out her hand in farewell. "forgive me, won't you?" She made a motion to rise.

"Forgive you? No—a thousand times no!" He caught her hand and forced her back into his chair.

"But you must!"

If I must—I'll take you where ever you're going. Yes, I will. You haven't any reasons good enough to discourage me."

"No—please don't insist."

"I do insist, he was determined. And within a few seconds he summoned a waiter, paid the check and was striding out to his car, with Lillian by his side.

What could she do? It was ten minutes to nine!

He opened the door of his car and attempted to help Lillian in.

"No," she balked. "I'll just take a cab. Please!"

His eyes sought hers and his fingers tightened about her arm.

He shook his head slowly, his face bending down near hers.

"You don't want to—to see me anymore, then?"

The amusement she liked to see in his gray eyes was seriousness. She had to turn her eyes away from him, quickly. He might read them, more than anything she ever had wanted in her life.

She wanted to say: "You're the reason I came to New York. I know now. I wanted to find you. I never wanted a job. I wanted you—your Love!"

But he was her job! She was tempted to say "You're my life's work!"

His fingers tightened and wrapped about her arm, as if they never would let her go.

There was a light within a few feet of where they stood on the curb. Its shadow fell provocatively, temptingly across Lillian's face, kindly covering the ardor of her eyes and baring soft curves of her mouth.

The circle of light was as shielding as an island—an island for only two, one woman, one man. Both possessed of each other.

The folds of his overcoat opened, as his arms opened, and enfolded Lillian, holding her against the warm tweed body of Barry.

Lillian had no power to draw away, run. She was helpless, but deliciously happy.

That was a second she always would cherish. It would never become dim. It was a bright, precious jewel.

She knew he was going to kiss her, but she was powerless to postpone the rapture.

He was to wrap his arms about her bend her back, far back and find her lips—

Her job was to make him forget another girl. He was making her forget everything—except that he held her.

And then she closed her eyes and Barry Carlton kissed her.

Thursday evening Miss Mary Ann Snedker of Fairfield, entertained the Bath High debate team and their coach, Mr. Paul L. Sultzbach. Those present were: Jack Crosby, Ralph Kiser, Robert Pfister, Carl Mayes, Marie Owen, Ruth Vernon and the hostess, Miss Snedker.

Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock the Men's Brotherhood Society of the M. E. Church will be in charge of the regular services. Special music for the evening will be directed by Merrill Tritt. There will be a speaker of this group for the evening.

April 29 is the day set for the spring festival at the Osborn Lumber Co. Osborn. Mr. Paul Carlisle is planning many special features for this afternoon and evening's entertainment.

Mrs. Anthony Barran and Miss Lynn Barringer were in Springfield Friday on business.

Arthur Pfister, who had his arm broken in an accident a few days ago, is resting comfortably at his home.

Delphian Society will meet Thursday evening. Miss Martha Klinger will be leader for this meeting.

ANTIOCH PREPARES MEMORIAL TRIBUTE TO FORMER TRUSTEE

The administrative council of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, which the late Gen. J. Warren Keifer, 96, served as a trustee for fifty-nine years, adopted memorial resolutions at a special session Friday following the death of the famous Civil War general and statesman at Springfield.

High tribute to Gen. Keifer was paid by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, president of Antioch, who said with the association of the general with the college and its faculty had been "very close and of an extremely valuable nature" to Antioch.

Gen. Keifer, who was a member of the first class of the college, beginning at the time the institution was founded by Horace Mann in 1853, later held many positions of honor and trust at Antioch. Frequently, even after reaching an advanced age, he was consulted upon matters of history pertaining to the school.

Appointed college trustee in 1873, he retained that honor for the last fifty-nine years.

Gen. Keifer was present at the inaugural address of Horace Mann when that famous educator became the first president of Antioch. "The keen, retentive memory of Gen. Keifer is shown," President Morgan said Friday, "when, scores of years later, he repeated to me many of the highlights of Mann's speech on the occasion of inauguration as president of Antioch."

Reference to manuscripts of that address, President Morgan declared, showed the noted soldier had retained an exceptionally clear memory concerning it.

Antioch, in 1920, conferred its last honor upon Gen. Keifer when he was made professor emeritus of history.

Gen. Keifer, President Morgan also said, had a wider grasp of the history of the region about Antioch than perhaps any other person in which the college faculty came in contact.

The famous Springfield resident outlived most of the members of his regiment, the 110th Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

When the regimental association held its annual reunion in Xenia last September, only five of about twenty-five surviving members were able to be present.

Miss Anna Baker, Fairfield Pike, daughter of David F. Baker, who was a member of the 110th company, is one of the sons and daughters of regimental members who are carrying on the yearly gatherings. Several years ago she was made permanent secretary of the association. Horace Keifer, Springfield, grandson of Gen. Keifer, has represented his grandfather at many of the reunions.

Birell Another Garbo? Universal Hopes So

The heart of every producer in Hollywood beats with a single hope—to find another Garbo.

To this end Carl Laemmle, Jr., is preparing to launch Tala Birell upon her starring career in "Broken Dreams of Hollywood."

Miss Birell is the Romanian actress who came over here in November, 1930, to make the German version of "The Command to Love" and who returned last July to begin a long term contract with Universal.

Since then she has spent her time perfecting her English. The first test role was in "Mountains of Flame," which will probably be screened under the title of "The Doomed Battalion." In Europe the actress played on the Vienna stage and on the screen under direction of the late F. W. Murnau.

Her new picture, "Broken Dreams of Hollywood" is from the pen of Ben Orkwo and will be directed by Hobart Henley. It goes into production within the month, preceding Zola's "Nana" which Universal originally announced for the star.

Of interest is the fact that there's a mild epidemic of Hollywood stories being filmed right now. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is represented with "It's Got to Be Big"; RKO with "The Truth About Hollywood"; Harold Lloyd with "Movie Crazy"; and Universal again with "Once in a Lifetime."

Though it still comes under the head of a rumor, it persists that Robert Young will have the masculine lead in the long-talked-about production of "Red-Headed Woman."

Since "The Wet Parade" he's one of the fair-haired boys at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. For the moment they have him working as Norma Shearer's son in the final episode of "Strange Interlude."

Jean Harlow, they say, is practically set for the feminine lead in the film and Jack Conway will direct. Miss Harlow is reported to have left New York for the coast to take the part.

The story, you may remember, is by Katherine Brush and was snatched up by the movies while still running in a popular magazine. Miss Brush, during her first marriage to Stew Brush, son of Louis Brush of the Brush-Moore Newspapers, a group of Ohio dailies, lived for a time at East Liverpool, where her husband was publisher of one of his father's papers. The story "Red-Headed Woman" was laid in a fictitious town in eastern Ohio easily identified as East Liverpool.

William Wallace Reid, son of the late Wally Reid, is planning a career in pictures. Now 14, the lad is supported in his desire by his mother, Dorothy Davenport, who lives quietly in Hollywood with Bill and a younger daughter. Although now known as Bill the boy is expected to take his father's name. He is tall like his dad and has much of Reid's facial expression, including the once famous Reid smile.

City Electrician Harry Jenkins contends that "trying noises" that break out during radio programs occasionally are due to "electric agers" used by moonshiners in giving their products flavor.

INGALLS AND GREINER RECEIVE APPROVAL OF G. O. P. VETERANS

Candidates of David S. Ingalls, Republican gubernatorial aspirant, and Edward E. Greiner, Springfield, Republican congressional candidate from the Seventh District, were endorsed by the Ex-Service Men's Republican Club of Greene County at a meeting in the Court House assembly room Friday night.

Ex-service men from Xenia and all parts of the county, including Fairfield, Osborn, Yellow Springs and Spring Valley, were present at the meeting at which the action was taken.

Resolutions pledging unqualified

XENIA CENTENARIAN MAY RECEIVE VISIT TO WASHINGTON D. C.

Mrs. Sarah Frances Davis, Lake St., who celebrated her 101st birthday January 18, may receive a free trip to Washington, D. C., and be honored there on Mother's Day, May 8, as the "symbol of motherhood" under a plan of the George Washington Bi-Centennial Commission it was revealed this week.

The name of Mrs. Davis was one of two submitted from the Cincinnati vicinity as a candidate for the honor. The commission has been seeking the "oldest mother" for some time throughout the nation in connection with its program May 8, honoring Mary Ball Washington, mother of the "Father of His Country". All expenses to Washington of the winning mother will be paid and she will be safeguarded in every way while there, being under special care of the American Medical Association.

The other candidate entered from the Cincinnati vicinity was Mrs. Margaret Bush, Barwick, Ky., 100 years old. Mrs. E. Nelson High, Norwood, O., was in charge of receiving the names of possible "oldest mothers" and although there were about fifty names submitted Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Bush, because of their age, were considered to have the best chance of winning the honor.

In order to qualify for the honor the oldest mother desired "has to be native born, and on one side of her ancestry come from proven stock which helped make the United States."

INVITE FOODY POST

Xenia Legionnaires have been invited to attend an open meeting sponsored by George E. Dignam Post, No. 526, American Legion of Fairfield-Osborn, at 8 o'clock Monday night in the auditorium of Bath Twp. High School, at which Paul M. Herbert, Columbus, Ohio department commander of the Legion, will be guest speaker.

MISSES MEETING

Sheriff John Baughn, who has been bothered by a heavy cold, did not attend a meeting of the uniform committee of the Buckeye Sheriffs' Association at the Southern Hotel in Columbus, Friday, at which a recommendation was expected to be made that Ohio deputy sheriffs be clad in a distinctive uniform.

support of ex-service men in this district to the candidacies of Ingalls and Greiner were adopted. Dr. H. C. Messenger, Xenia, is chairman of the club, and Morris Sharp, Xenia, former sheriff, is secretary.

The resolutions of endorsement follow:

Whereas, Edward E. Greiner of Clark County is a candidate for representative to the United States Congress from the Seventh Congressional District, and

Whereas, during time of war, he volunteered and served his country as a private and was promoted to First Lieutenant and served overseas, and

Whereas, Mr. Greiner being a life-long Republican,

Therefore be it resolved, that we the Ex-Service Men's Republican Club of Greene County, hereby endorse the candidacy of Edward E. Greiner for Congress from the Seventh District, pledge our unqualified support for his nomination and election and urge all ex-service men throughout the district to support Mr. Greiner.

Whereas, David S. Ingalls, a life-long resident of the State of Ohio, is a candidate for Governor of the State, and

Whereas, during the World War, he volunteered and served his country, and received the high honor of a Navy ace, and was honored by his country and two other allied countries for bravery, and

Whereas, his record, since the service, as a lawyer and legislator and Assistant Secretary of the Navy justly qualifies him as a candidate for Governor,

Therefore, be it resolved that we, the Ex-Service Men's Republican Club of Greene County, hereby endorse the candidacy of David S. Ingalls for Governor of Ohio, and pledge our support for his nomination and election and urge all ex-service men throughout the state to support Mr. Ingalls.

Chairman, H. C. Messenger. Secretary, Morris Sharp.

BABSON FINDS SMALLER FIRM HAS ADVANTAGE

Remains Backbone Of Nation And Many Show Profit

BABSON PARK, Fla., April 23.—There is such a thing as a business getting too big. In every successful corporation there must be one man capable of dominating the whole business. This depression proves that with the huge corporation, the task is almost too great for one man to handle, no matter how capable he may be. As long as a business is small or medium-sized there are men big enough in brain and character to guide the business to success even through hard times. That is why some of the smaller companies are actually doing better today than the giant corporations. Out of 1,500 well-known industrial companies only fifty-seven showed increased profits in 1931 over 1930. The remarkable thing is that forty-eight of these were medium-sized or actually small concerns. Twenty-five of them were below the million dollar earnings class and seventeen of them below the half-million. This proves that the moderate sized business, capably managed, can be more successful under present conditions than the giant corporations.

The small business man is still the backbone of this country, despite the enormous growth of many corporations. The majority of the country's total goods is still produced by small manufacturers. Hence, while I recognize the economic need for mass production and mass distribution as practiced by large corporations, and while I believe they can do much to help business by such drives as Ford and General Motors are now putting on; nevertheless, the real improvement will come only as the multitude of small business men substitute courage for fear. The smaller companies should take full advantage of the opportunities which are peculiarly theirs under present conditions. Now, as never before, it is the size of the man rather than the size of the business that determines success.

Small Concern More Flexible

Trying to grow too fast was one of the chief causes of this depression. In so-doing business over-expanded, over-produced, over-built, and over-specified on the future. As a consequence, many big corporations grew unwieldy, top-heavy with expense, and wide open for trouble when the boom stopped. Medium-sized and small concerns can make rapid readjustments to depression conditions. They are more flexible, they can adapt their products to changing demands without the enormous costs entailed by the big corporation. Most of all, when changes are necessary the man at the head of the small concern can make them swiftly and surely because he personally knows the whole condition of his business, including accounting, financing, selling, labor, products, and prices. Big companies move more slowly, because no one man can carry all that knowledge. In studying the reports that come to me from many small concerns I have been impressed by the manner in which a number of them have scored gains in earnings, even though sales have declined. One reason is that closer control has made possible quick and thorough over-hauling of operating costs. Another reason is that the small company can make a profit on small special orders, whereas the big concern with a vast amount of machinery and a floor space would lose money on such orders. It costs too much to start up a big plant for a small order. More and more these little companies have been getting the business. The smaller concern as a rule is not burdened with the heavy debt charges that must be met by many over-expanded corporations. Also, the small concern carries smaller inventories and, therefore, has not suffered the heavy losses experienced by many big concerns through commodity price declines.

Take Employees Into Confidence

One big advantage of the small business man is that he is much closer to his employees. Often times he knows them personally. In these trying times he can explain to his workers the necessity for economies and secure their cooperation, rather than their ill-will. My advice to the small business man is to get rid of any inferiority complex he may have acquired because of big corporation competition. He should wake up to the advantages he now possesses over the big competitor. Also he should carry this same message to his employees. Let them know that the small company for which they work has a chance just as good and perhaps better than the big industrial giant for making a strong comeback in sales, earnings, and general recovery. This will do more than anything else to help the morale of the workers, and secure their whole-hearted co-operation in any sacrifices necessary to accomplish the desired results.

As we come out of this depression

it will be the ably-managed small and medium-sized companies that make the first gains in profits. When times were booming the industrial giants had a big advantage because their huge plants were operating at capacity and, therefore, at costs lower than the small business could meet. Now, however, the situation is reversed. The little fellow is going to have his innings. With big plants operating at a fraction of capacity, overhead and idle machinery quickly raise costs and eat up profits. The closely-knit, compact, well-managed small company bears no such burden. Furthermore, he should heed the greatest lesson of this depression which is: "Be satisfied with less speed than we had from 1925 to 1929." Build, solidly, even though slowly; maintain quality at low cost even though the temptation may be strong to make cheap goods. In this way, by playing fair with the public, with employees, and with competitors the small and moderate-sized concern can turn the present depression into the keystone of its future success.

General business as measured by the Babson chart is now 36 per cent below the normal X-Y line, compared with 35 per cent a month ago, even with adjustments for usual seasonal movements.
